

The thought of having cellular phone use onboard on aircraft is absurd. You may have never walked down a street in China, Japan, or Korea and seen the massive use of phones. I am a Flight Attendant with United Airlines and have seen this. It is overwhelming and alarming to say the least. The thought of giving people the right to use phones onboard is truly frightening. People tend to be very intolerant onboard aircrafts, they want to watch the movie, do their paperwork, work on computers or sleep. To interrupt those activities would cause fights or worse. In addition, think of hijackers being able to communicate with their cohorts on the ground, is 911 such a distant memory? Please do not allow this to happen. Flight Attendants have enough problems with alcohol consumption, air quality, and frustration about the airlines in general, please do not give us another problem.
